

ECHOES OF CEDARVILLE OCTOBER 2013

Cedarville Area Historical Society

Historical Society Seeks 2 Archivists

*By Jim Bade
CAHS President*

The Cedarville Area Historical Society has a large collection of books, documents, photographs and three dimensional artifacts related to Cedarville history, but their use for research and exhibits is greatly restricted because the collection needs re-organization and improved preservation with new techniques.

In an effort to solve the problem, the society is seeking two volunteers with the skills necessary to put the collection in order, to determine the best methods of preserving individual items and to maintain the collection.

One person would work with the books, documents and photographs in the library. The second would be responsible for the three dimensional items in the museum's archive storage room. Both would need good computer skills because it is no longer possible to rely on 4 by 6 index cards to catalog and maintain collections.

These projects do not require working set hours. Persons interested in helping the society in this effort should contact me after October 15 at 815-563-4485. I will meet with them and discuss the details of the work involved.

The tasty $2 lunch (hot dog or barbeque, chips, beverage, dessert) enjoyed by many was prepared by Sue Myers (foreground) and Kelly Priewe, society members.

Shepardess Suzy Beggin, Stockton, takes time for domestic chores involving her daughter while son is engrossed with more important things.

Nancy Jones, Cedarville, found many people — young and old — interested in learning how to make corn husk dolls.

Sharon Barmore checks out the beeswax candles that are individually made by Vickie and Don Franz of Freeport.

Elle Wells, Freeport, carefully sculpts one of her fine pieces of pottery.

The prints and drawings offered by Ellen Bartels, Freeport, were outstanding and very reasonably priced.

Dan Baldwin, Brodhead, WI., was pleased to respond to American folk song requests from visitors to the festival.

Kathy Wilken of Freeport specializes in abstract paintings using the wet felting process

Martha Jones, Cedarville, whose sweet voice on folk songs captivated the festival goers, admires the very fine jewelry made by Amanda Spielman, Freeport.

Music Discs Great for Any Reason

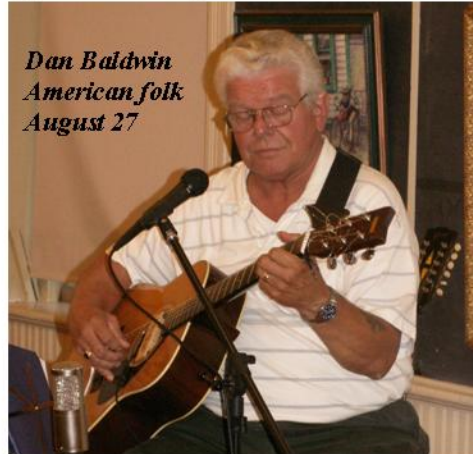

By Jim Bade
President, CAHS

If you want to re-live the fantastic live music of the historical society's three music and history programs, here's your chance. Or if you missed those evenings or are looking for a great holiday gift for that impossible person, here's your salvation.

DVDs and CDs of the three programs are available from the archives of the Cedarville Area Historical Society. The cost is $10 for an individual disc or $25 for a set of three. Tack on $2 for each set or $1 for each single disc for mailing costs.

The order blank is on page eight of this newsletter.

Each disc includes every minute of each
